2. This Directive rescinds Intelligence Community Policy Memorandum 2006-100-1, The Intelligence Community Policy Process and supersedes all previous policies, memoranda, or portions thereof, regarding the IC policy process.

C. D. POLICY

The DNI shall establish IC policy to achieve a unified, integrated, effective, and accountable IC postured to address and advance IC mission objectives to meet United States (U.S.) national security needs. The DNI shall establish IC policy consistent with applicable law, Executive Order, national security policy, and the DNI's strategic intent.

2. The IC Policy System shall be comprised of a hierarchy of policy instruments as defined in Section E.1. These interrelated IC Directives, Guidance, Standards, or Memoranda, herein referred to as policies, issued by the DNI, designated ODNI officials, Functional Managers, and other IC officials designated by the DNI are governed by this Directive and any subordinate policies.

3. Policies shall be:

- f. Evaluated for compliance, effectiveness, and improvement.

E. FRAMEWORK

1. The IC Policy System shall establish policies applicable to the IC using the following instruments:

a. Intelligence Community Directive (ICD). ICDs may be based on statute, regulation, Executive Order, or other policy directives and establish policy and provide definitive direction to the IC. ICDs may: define activities, systems, or missions; delegate authorities; establish roles and responsibilities; assign decision rights; establish governance structures; include evaluation criteria; or replace or modify previous policy, or provide other such guidance as the DNI deems appropriate. ICDs are developed and coordinated in accordance with ICPG 101.1, Intelligence Community Directives and Policy Guidance and are signed by the DNI or, in the DNI's absence, the Principal Deputy DNI (PDDNI).

b. Intelligence Community Policy Guidance (ICPG). ICPGs provide further guidance required for the implementation of ICDs. ICPGs are subsidiary to ICDs and may establish subordinate responsibilities, and define procedures, processes, or methodologies that enable ICDs to be implemented effectively. ICPGs shall be within the scope of and consistent with their associated ICDs. ICPGs are coordinated in accordance with ICPG 101.1 and are signed by the Assistant Director of National Intelligence for Policy and Strategy (ADNI/P&S).

c. Intelligence Community Standard (ICS). ICSs are subordinate to ICDs and ICPGs, and are fully consistent with applicable ICDs and ICPGs. ICSs are policy instruments of the IC Policy System and provide specific procedures, sets of rules, conditions, guidelines, characteristics, or specifications for intelligence or intelligence-related products, processes, or activities in support of effective and uniform implementation of laws, Executive Orders, and IC policies. ICSs shall be developed, coordinated, and approved pursuant to ICPG 101.2, Intelligence Community Standards, and are signed by officials designated in Section G.1.c.(2) or G.2 of this Directive.

d. Intelligence Community Policy Memorandum (ICPM). ICPMs focus on issues or concerns of the DNI that impact the IC; communicate strategic policy intent, or preliminary approaches of the DNI; and may later culminate in, and contribute to, development of an ICD or ICPG. ICPMs may also be used by the DNI to address emerging, immediate or urgent policy needs. ICPMs are developed and coordinated in accordance with ICPG 101.3, Intelligence Community Policy Memoranda, and are signed by the DNI or, in the DNI's absence, the PDDNI.

F. POLICY ADVISORY BODIES

1. The IC Policy System includes the following bodies, which serve an integral role in the process of developing and coordinating IC policy:

a. Intelligence Community Policy Review Board (IC-PRB). The IC-PRB is an advisory board comprised of deputy-level leaders from IC elements. The IC-PRB is chaired by the ADNI/P&S. The objective of the IC-PRB is to provide a forum for high-level issue discussion and resolution; to ensure that key stakeholders and constituencies have been appropriately engaged on individual policies; to align policies with DNI and IC strategic objectives and intent; and to further identify policy needs and priorities, as well as inconsistencies or gaps in current policy.

b. Intelligence Policy Advisory Group (IPAG). The IPAG is comprised of designated senior policy representatives from each IC element and is chaired by the Director for Policy. The objective of the IPAG forum is to inform the development of policy and ensure an inclusive and collaborative process. The IPAG shall serve as the official channel of communication on policy matters, and each IC element is responsible for communicating its respective policy equities and interests and identifying members for working groups.
